UNM Press Now Distributor for Cotsen Institute of Archaeology Press

ALBUQUERQUE—As of November 8, 2012, the University of New Mexico Press (UNM Press) will serve as distributor for the Cotsen Institute of Archaeology Press (CioA Press). Since it began in 1975 as the publication unit of the Institute of Archaeology at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), the CioA Press has worked to preserve cultural heritage through the documentation, interpretation, and publication of scholarly archaeological research in places ranging from Peru, Belize, the American Southwest, and California to Egypt, Jordan, Greece, Albania, and China. Specializing in beautifully produced and scholarly vetted books, the CioA Press publishes approximately twelve titles per year in seven series that represent a particular signature, purpose, and public. Acquisitions are monitored by an editorial board composed of distinguished UCLA and external faculty.

“In the University of New Mexico Press, we have found a partner for distribution of our books that understands the ins and outs of academic publishing,” declares CioA Press Editorial Director Willeke Wendrich. “We are very excited to work with UNM Press on moving the publication of archaeological reports and interpretations into a new era, one in which online data publication has become feasible and increasingly important.”

For over eighty years, UNM Press has specialized in scholarly and trade books on subjects including anthropology, archaeology, indigenous studies, Latin American studies, American studies, Chicana/o studies, art, architecture, and the history, literature, ecology, and cultures of the American West. As part of its public outreach mission, the Press also distributes titles for other New Mexico publishers including the Museum of New Mexico Press, New Mexico Magazine, West End Press, La Alameda Press, and Fresco Fine Art Publications.

"UNM Press is pleased to be the new distribution partner for the Cotsen Institute of Archaeology Press," say UNM Press Director John W. Byram. "On behalf of our host institutions, both publishing organizations share an ongoing commitment to making important information available to the scholarly archaeology community and to the public at large. This will be a fruitful collaboration for many years to come."
